MOKENA PTA MEETS OCT. 28 WHERE THE PTA FITS INTO PICTURE OF MORALE

The Mokena PTA will hold its next meeting Wednesday, October 28 at 8 pm, instead of the usual Tuesday. Mr. Stevens, Executive Secretary of Will County Tuberculosis Association will be the guest speaker.

Morale has been defined as How you feel about a thing at a given time in a given place. A soldier or sailor has a different morale for each period of the day and for each place he may find himself in. That is, his morale is constantly changing. This is due to the fact that his morale is raised or lowered by the impressions made by his environment upon his inner conscience. The same is true of the people on the home front. They are constantly being affected by the people and conditions about them and they, in turn are influencing the people they meet.

But where does an organization like the PTA fit into this picture of morale building? Just this. The PTA in Mokena is already in motion; it has clearly defined aims already set up; its policies are workable; its leaders are competent; its meeting place is established and its points of contact with the public are convenient. In short, the PTA is in an ideal position to raise the morale of the people in Mokena by providing inspiration and developing proper attitudes toward the wartime situations that confront them.

There are many things that the PTA can do to raise morale but these four suggested by an Ohio member E. E. Holt, seem most important. They are:

Face the stern realities of the present situation, not underestimating the strength and cunning of our foes.

Keep our poise, weighing all events carefully as they occur.

Work with all our strength to do the tasks that daily fall to our hands.

Keep our faith in God and the right, trusting Him to lead us out of this dark valley, to the light of a new day.

No doubt by this time someone has called at your home regarding your membership in the Mokena PTA. The purpose of this organization is not to interfere with administration of school functions for that is the responsibility of the school board. The purpose of the organization is to promote the welfare of children.

A big and active Parent Teachers Association can see to it that all the advantages possible are provided for the children in Mokena.

It is not too late to join for you can attend some of the meetings even if you cannot come to all.

MASSING OF PUBLIC OPINION AUGURS FOR REP. VICTORY

A massing of public opinion which augurs for a complete Republican victory in Will County and Illinois was seen by political observers today as the time neared for the November 3 election, the first election of the war.

The American people, these observers said, are concentrating their efforts on a swift and complete victory in the American tradition.

Toward these ends, they are determined to choose officials in the coming election who will speed the war effort with efficiency, purpose and economy while they maintain the traditions of the American way and the ideals of Honest American government on the home front.

On this basis, the re-election of Richard J. Barr, dean of the Illinois senate, is considered a foregone conclusion.

Republican County candidates, campaigning on a record of their fine service in office and their outstanding qualifications, are also assured victory, according to this information.

They include County Judge Glen L. Cowing, Probate Judge Fred R. Hartley, Probate Clerk Donald C. Lang, Ivan Rhodes for County Treasurer, Ralph H. Newkirk for sheriff and Louis F. Bottino for superintendent of schools.

On the state ticket C. Wayland Brooks is seeking re-election as U. S. Senator and Stephen A. Day as congressman at Large, while Wm. G. Stratton is running for the state treasurer and Vernon Nickell for state superintendent of public instruction. The balance of the Republican slate includes Chauncey W. Reed for congressman and Warren L. Wood and Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill for state representative, all running for re-election.

"This is an important moment in American history," Attorney Walter O. Herschbach, County Republican campaign chairman, stated. "We must win the war. And we must win the peace by maintaining the ideals for which we are fighting. The election of Republican officials will be an important step in achieving this objective."

Miss Funk was escorted to the altar by her father who gave her in marriage. She wore a blue wool suit with darker blue accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of white camellias.

Miss Lorraine Funk, sister of the bride was maid of honor. Her gown of gold color was contrasted with brown accessories and a shoulder corsage of gardenias.

MOKENA PUTS ON SECOND SALVAGE DRIVE

This Saturday marks Mokena's 2nd General Salvage drive. So pitch in everybody. Go over the premises again and dig up every possible piece of scrap. Search the attic, clean out the basement, check the garage for metal, rubber or rags. Every ounce of copper, brass, aluminum, zinc, bronze, lead, iron steel you can contribute to the Nation's scrap pile. Yes, chances are that guns for our soldiers are right now in your home in the form of junk. There are parts of planes in your cellars, and in your barn. War factories need what you can't use.

Here's the plan for Saturday's pick up: In the morning, the Boy Scouts will make the rounds of the town, calling at each house to offer to move scrap materials from your home garage or back yard to the street. In the afternoon a crew with a truck will go up and down Mokena streets, picking up the scrap and hauling it to the General Salvage Depot. There it will be picked up by a junk dealer. Proceeds from its sale will be used to purchase very necessary equipment and supplies for our local civilian defense organization.

If you have the time, don't wait for the Scouts to call. Move your salvage materials to the street yourself. If you have more time, haul it to the Salvage depot at the Mall Lumber Yard.

Every one has no doubt read about the urgency of getting scrap metal, rubber and rags to America's war production plants. No matter how little you have, put it back into circulation. Read these examples of how far a little scrap will go:

An old flatiron will provide enough steel for 2 helmets or 30 hand grenades. An old stove has enough steel to make 10 4-inch shells. An old lawn mower has enough steel for 6 3-inch shells, one old tire has enough re-laminated rubber for 20 pairs of parachute trooper's boots or 12 gas masks. One copper kettle has enough copper for 84 rounds of ammunition for an automatic rifle. One old battery, has enough lead for three 3-in. anti-aircraft guns.

If by chance your place is missed, just phone Mokena 2573 or 2441.

Frankfort Church To Observe Diamond Jubilee

After months of labor on the part of the pastor and various committees all is in readiness for the celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of St. Peter's Church of Frankfort.

This celebration is the crowning event of sixteen years of labor and the expenditure of approximately $37000.00 in erecting a new parsonage and remodeling the interior of the church, which today is fully equipped to carry on its work and exerting a vital influence in the life of the community.

The remarkably well executed decoration of the church auditorium is such that one naturally feels the desire to worship upon entering. Seldom does one find such a complete harmony of colors even in much more expensively decorated churches. The designer Mr. Harry Myers of the National Decorating Service, who also painted the figures brought to his work a spirit of reverence and devotion which will be an inspiration to many who worship in St. Peter's during the coming celebration.

The anniversary will be celebrated in the following services:

Sunday, October 25th: Bible school at 9:00 am., Special Dedicatory Service 10:00 am. The sermon will be delivered by Rev. Timothy Lehmann D.D. President of Elmhurst College, Elmhurst and a long time friend of Pastor Gerhold.

Special music will be rendered by the Mixed Choir of St. Peter's church under the direction of Mrs. Wesley Holstein.

In the second Special Service at 2:30 pm to which the neighboring churches are especially invited, the Missionary Emil Menzel, a grandson of the Rev. Fr. Menzel who organized St. Peter's church and served it as Pastor for two years will deliver the sermon and special music furnished by the Men's Chorus under the direction of Mrs. Holstein.

On Sunday evening the young people of the church with the assistance of the choir will present the latest religious drama by Dorothy Clarke Wilson entitled Send Out Thy Light. This service will begin at 7:30 pm.

Tuesday evening will be community night and will be attended by the different organizations active in the community. The service is sponsored by the Men's Bible class. The Men's Chorus will furnish special music. Time 8 p.m. The speaker will be Rev. A. T. Gerhold of Buffalo, N. Y.

Thursday has been set aside for the Women's Guild. In the afternoon meeting at 2:30 pm the members of the neighboring women's societies will be the guests of the Guild. Miss Genevieve Stoudt, dean of women of Elmhurst college will deliver the address. Special music will be delivered by a women's trio.

At 4:30 a supper will be served to the public and in the evening Service at 8 p.m., Rev. Wm. Rest, President of the North Illinois Synod will preach the sermon. Special music by the women's chorus.

On Sunday, Nov. 1, the closing date of the celebration there will be a German Service at 8:30 am. Bible School at 9:30 am. and English Service at 10:30 am, with Holy Communion served at the close of both services.

In the Evening service the churches of the Monee region will conduct their annual Union Reformation Day service in Frankfort. The special music will be rendered by a choir of young people and pastors families. The public is most cordially invited to attend our Jubilee Services.

MOKENA SERVICE WOMEN'S CLUB TO HOLD CARD PARTY

In order to raise additional funds we are charging a small amount for the lunch.

Now let's all turn out and show the boys that the whole village is backing them. Remember that every boy entering the Service is offering his life for his country, and that means for each and every one of us let's try to show a little appreciation by trying to fill their lives in the service with thoughts of kindness and appreciation from the whole community. That is what the Service Women's Club is trying to do but we can't succeed unless we have the cooperation and help of each and every one. So we'll be seeing you at St. Mary's Hall Oct. 30 at 8 pm.

Alaska Highway to Be Ready For Army Use About December 1

'Alcan,' America's New 1,600-Mile 'Burma Road' Through Virgin Wilderness, Constitutes Engineering Feat of First Magnitude.

Several months ahead of schedule, the Canadian-Alaskan Military highway, which has been under construction by the United States army engineers since last March, will be ready for army use early this winter, it was announced by the war department recently.

The engineers expect to finish the pioneer road about December 1, 1942. Plans are now being made for winter traffic over the complete route of approximately 1,600 miles between that date and April 1, 1943, the period during which the highway and the rivers of the region it traverses will be frozen. During the months of April and May it is believed the road will be unsuitable for heavy traffic owing to thaws and excessive moisture following the break-up of winter.

Although originally contemplated as a rough "pioneer" road, to be

Maj. Gen. Eugene Reybold, chief of engineers. The work is being performed by engineer officers and enlisted personnel of the United States army.

Northwest Service Command.
On September 10, 1942, the war department announced the establishment of the Northwest Service command, in charge of army highway and railroad building activities, and supply maintenance services in western Canada and Alaska, with headquarters at Whitehorse, Yukon Territory, Canada. Brig. Gen.

Rough and Ready

Typical engineer working for Uncle Sam in the Yukon territories.

The first of these was the procedure of initiating construction at various points along the route at the same time, by transporting crews and equipment to strategic locations in March, before the spring break-up of ice and snow made trails and rivers impassable.

The second was the employment of aerial surveys, followed by stereoscopic analysis of aerial photographs and the time-tested and traditional engineer method of ground reconnaissance on foot, with pack-horse and dog-train.

The third was the use of bulldozers, tractors and other types of heavy equipment, without which the record for speed and semi-permanent construction could not have been achieved. The primary road was actually established by the powerful bulldozers, which plowed through the forests of native spruce, jackpine and aspen as if through cornfields, uprooting and pushing trees literally off a 100-foot cut.

Timbers for the construction of bridges, trestles and other structures were felled by the troops and processed by sawmills on the site. Ferries for crossing the many turbulent creeks and streams, were improvised of rafts and pontoons. At one major crossing a large scow was built from forest lumber capable of transporting equipment weighing 40 tons.

Extremes of Heat and Cold.

During March the troops battled bitter winds and temperatures as low as 35 degrees below zero, when it was impossible to drive a tent-peg into the frozen ground. During July and August they sweated under a heat of more than 90 degrees and were forced to wear gloves and net helmets to protect themselves from the swarms of mosquitoes, flies and insect pests. In wet weather they slogged through bottomless mud; in dry weather portions of the road were shrouded in clouds of alluvial dust so fine that no mesh could exclude it.

Through it all, however, according to official reports from the field, the morale of the men remained high and the job has gone forward at a rate which will bring the road to completion well in advance of the most optimistic estimate. The engineers report that the threats of muskeg proved wholly unfounded. Muskeg, a bog moss studded with sedge, has proved to be a minor problem. Most of it has been successfully skirted and that which was unavoidable has been overcome with corduroy roads. In one particular section of 60 miles in length, reported to consist principally of muskeg, only four miles of it were encountered.

Great Engineering Feat.

The construction of the pioneer route through the virgin wilderness in such a short space of time constitutes an engineering feat by the army of first magnitude. It was not accomplished without physical hardship and privation on the part of the officers and men, but no handicaps of weather or terrain were sufficient to dampen the enthusiasm of the troops or retard progress. Aside from the endurance and efficiency of the force, among whom a large detachment of Negro troops acquitted themselves with special distinction, three main factors contributed to the speed with which construction has been carried on.

completed in one year, the Alcan highway as it is now being constructed by the corps of engineers is a well-graded, well-drained truck road for practically its entire length and will afford two-way traffic over many long stretches.

The highway begins at Dawson

Manpower gets busy as these U. S. army engineers build bridges that connect up with the Alcan highway.

Creek, British Columbia, just north of Edmonton, pursues a northwesterly course to Whitehorse, in Yukon Territory, then swings west across the Alaskan boundary and thence to Fairbanks.

A Military Supply Route.

The Alcan highway will function as an important military supply route. Connecting with the railway and highway systems of the United States and southern Canada at Dawson Creek, its southern terminus, the pioneer route provides not only an uninterrupted motor highway to Alaska, but serves as a feeder road to several important military airfields in Canada that have hitherto had to depend upon air transport for all their supplies. The latter may now be trucked in overland.

The construction of the pioneer road is a militarized project, authorized by joint agreement between Canada and the United States and carried out under the direction of Heavy construction equipment proves its weight in gold when called upon to break through virgin territory.

Alcan Highway Will Help Oust Japs From Aleutians

Alaska is our first line of defense against our war with Japan, and its strategic importance to the safety of continental United States can hardly be overestimated.

Up to this time this vast wilderness outpost has been reached by only two main routes, air and water. The Alcan highway will provide a third, and possibly the most important, route to this strategic area. It will enable soldiers and armored equipment to reach Fairbanks in 80 hours from Edmonton, Alberta. This trip at present by ocean from Seattle takes eight days to Anchorage and another day to Fairbanks.

The Jap occupation of Kiska, Attu and Agattu in the Aleutian chain brought into strong focus the military importance of Alaska. About 10,000 Japs were landed.

The enemy has been repeatedly bombed in their main stronghold on the island of Kiska by heavy U. S.

bombers and has been blasted by the fleet. More recently the navy landed Yank troops in the Andreanof islands, only 125 miles east of Kiska, without the loss of a single man.

This operation of blasting the Japs from the Aleutians is one of the biggest and most important of the war, and the Alcan highway will play a major role in keeping our forces supplied with reinforcements and supplies. It will be a grand day for America and the world when the first brown army truck rolls into Fairbanks over the Alcan.

... Young Officers Prefer Small Aircraft Carriers ... Nazi Battleship Von Tirpitz Still Cause Of Much Concern

Bell Syndicate—WNU Features.

WASHINGTON. — Small aircraft carriers instead of those as big as battleships are the thing, according to most of the younger naval officers, in the British and United States navies. The men whose opinion is here cited have had experience in THIS war, aside from any theoretical discussions or training.

"Only in war can we really test these things," said one young officer. "It so happens that I have been an enthusiastic aviation bug for many years. But the admirals always said, before the war, that airplanes attacking battleships would be shot down by anti-aircraft fire like pigeons. Some of us replied that it is easy to get a brace of birds, as one walks along a country road with a walking stick. One lifts the stick to one's shoulder, and it is 'left, right' and both birds are dead. But when one tries it with a gun it is not always that way. One sometimes misses. I generally did."

The big convoys to Malta and Murmansk prove, according to the younger officers, that it is too dangerous to have the airplanes which protect the convoys on one or two big carriers. First there is the tremendous risk to the convoy if the carriers are lost or damaged. Then there is the idea of putting so many eggs in one basket which a few lucky shots by the enemy would destroy.

'Ideal for Convoys'

Airplane carriers which would carry only a dozen or 15 planes, some of the younger officers think, would be ideal for convoys.

Indications, however, are that anti-aircraft fire is improving, not only in marksmanship, but in the guns, machinery for aiming them, etc. Officers who have had recent experience in convoy defense say the Stukas are very easy to hit, and it is only a question of time before the effectiveness of the dive bomber is eliminated.

According to these officers the improvements now in sight for planes are not comparable to defensive measures. But sooner or later the reverse will again be true.

Murmansk Convoys Require Great Striking Power

The Nazi battleship von Tirpitz, sister ship of the Bismarck, is in the heart of every controversy these days among strategists of the British and United States navies as to whether the battleship has outlived its usefulness.

There is no denying that the Tirpitz being where she is, and what she is, affects every convoy to North Russia. The United Nations do not dare send a large convoy to Murmansk without allowing for her striking power should she get loose. The fact is that usually the British have some of their big battle-wagons along.

The enormously increased difficulty of this, including the fact that it is vitally necessary to protect the escorting battleships as well as the supply ships, results in the von Tirpitz's contributing heavily to German power even when lying at anchor in a Norwegian harbor.

The reply of the aircraft enthusiasts is that of course as long as the enemy has battleships we must have them too, but great stress is laid on the fact that it requires so many small craft and planes in order to protect one battleship. The risk of losing one is so great.

Of course the British continue hopeful that the von Tirpitz will venture out and give them a crack at her, in which case they are confident she would suffer the fate of the Bismarck. They keep a close watch on her. Every high officer in the United Nations navies on duty from Scotland to Murmansk is informed at least once a day where the von Tirpitz is.

Incidentally the admirals, still defending the battleship, point this out as a convincing argument for their side. They inquire, and it would seem with some reason, if air power is as devastating as its enthusiasts insist, why do not big bombers destroy the von Tirpitz since the admirals know precisely where she is, seven days out of every week?

Especially, they point out to the discomfiture of the air fans, since for some months there has been a season of almost 24-hour daylight at the von Tirpitz's anchorage.

There has been much wrangling about this in high circles, both in London and Washington, for there is no discounting the effect on morale all over the world which news of the destruction of the von Tirpitz would have.

GOLDEN TEXT—Let judgment run down as waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream.—Amos 5:24.

Let's do something about it! That is the right word regarding the liquor problem now. The time is past for theorizing or deploring—we need action. The liquor interests have redoubled their efforts of late because they fear the aroused public opinion of decent Americans. Why do not America's 65,000,000 church members say the word now, and curb this awful thing which is threatening to destroy us?

I. Right-Minded Rulers (Eccles. 10:17).

National leaders should set the example for the people—an example of sobriety, of clear-headed thought and full devotion to the cause of our country. Are they doing it? We quote: "Washington is the wettest spot in the nation. The per capita consumption of alcohol in the District of Columbia is almost twice that of the wettest state in the Union. In 1940, 4.26 gallons were consumed for every man, woman and child. Nevada, the wettest of all our states, consumed 2.65 gallons per person. There at Washington where they need the clearest heads, the steadiest nerves, and the highest morals, they are drinking the most booze" (Dr. I. M. Hargett). What about 1942? Those who have been able to observe, indicate that conditions are probably worse now!

The secretary of war and the secretary of the navy have insisted on the desirability of the sale of beer in service canteens. No wonder the Brewers' Digest of May, 1941, gloated: "One of the finest things that could have happened was the insistence by high ranking officers to make beer available in army camps. . . . Here is a chance for the brewers to cultivate a taste for beer in millions of young men."

II. Right-Spirited People (Amos 5:21-24).

God has no pleasure in the religious observances and the pious words of a people who profess to worship, but who come with unrepentant hearts and unclean hands.

Can God bless the man (or his money) who profits either directly or indirectly from the sale of intoxicants? Amos has the answer. Let us heed his plea that righteousness should run through our national, as well as our personal lives, "as a mighty stream."

III. Right - Living Christians (Rom. 14:19-21; II Cor. 6:17; I Pet. 4:1-5).

We have already suggested that there are 65,000,000 church members in America. If they were all right-living Christians there can be little question that they would long since have eliminated the liquor business, for it is certainly most unchristian. Apparently they are either not real Christians, or they are asleep to their responsibility. Our Scriptures in this section tell us that in a true Christian life there is

1. No offense (Rom. 14:19-21). The question here is that of eating meat offered to idols, which does not concern us; but the great Christian principle here stated is of the highest importance and bears directly on our daily life.

None of us lives to himself (Rom. 14:7). Everything we do counts either for or against Christ. Such an ordinary (we regret) thing as staying away from church service speaks to the world and especially to our neighbors of our loss of interest and respect for the worship of God. Apply that principle to the use of any alcoholic beverage, and every Christian must be a total abstainer.

2. No Compromise (II Cor. 6:17). We have come to the unscriptural and deeply dangerous viewpoint that if a Christian wants to compromise a bit with the world, the flesh and the devil, that's his "business." God does not think so. He says: "Come out from among them, and be ye separate." The weakness of the church on this matter of liquor is that too many of the 65,000,000 are guilty of the sin (and that's what it is!) of compromise.

3. No Worldliness (I Pet. 4:1-5). Here again the assumption of many is that there are two groups in the church—worldly Christians and spiritually minded ones, and that each is as good as the other. Both classes are there, no doubt about that, but God never has and never will countenance worldliness on the part of His people.

Essentially, there are just two opposing principles in this world—self-will and God's will. We are either controlled by the flesh or by the Spirit of God. Peter makes it clear that the one who claims to belong to Christ should no longer be controlled by self-will, but by God's will. Are we ready, fellow Christians, to yield to Him?

It Appears the Little Chap Was Just Having Sum Fun!

The father, who had made a practice of helping his young son with his arithmetic problems from school, took the little fellow to church with him on a Sunday.

They arrived a trifle late, the minister having already announced the opening song to be sung by the congregation. They found their seats and hurriedly sat down, as the clergyman said: "Ten Thousand Times Ten Thousand. Everybody!"

The little lad seemed puzzled for a moment, then nudged his father.

"Dad," he whispered, "do we have to work out this one, too?"

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with smarting and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder.

W.N.U. RELEASE

THE STORY SO FAR: Charlotte (Cherry) Rawlings, an orphan, has been at Saint Dorothea's convent school since she was seven years old. She knows almost nothing about her early history, but has gradually realized that like other girls at the school she has no family and questions whether she has a right to her father's name. Judge Judson Marshbanks and Emma Haskell are her co-guardians. When she is twenty Marshbanks tells her that Emma has gotten her a secretarial position in San Francisco with wealthy old Mrs. Porteous Porter. She goes first to the Marshbanks mansion and dines alone with the judge as Fran, his young wife, and his niece, Amy, are dining out. Kelly Coates, an artist, drops in, and Fran and Amy stop on their way out. As they leave, Cherry hears laughing reference to her convent clothes and she is bitter. Life with Mrs. Porter is monotonous, and she is thrilled when Kelly, horseback riding in the park with Fran, stops to talk with her while she is motoring with her employer. Later he sends her a box of candy and she is jealous when she sees him with Fran at a party given by Mrs. Porter. Emma tells Cherry that her sister, Charlotte, was Cherry's mother. Kelly takes Cherry along so Fran will visit his Sausalito studio, and it is evident that he is very much in love with Fran, but later he tells Cherry despondently that Fran has promised the judge she will not see him any more. Mrs. Porter dies, leaving Cherry $1,500. Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER IX

"I'm in tr-ouble and I've been crying, and I wondered if you'd come—come and take me for a drive!" stammered Cherry.

"I—I've had—bad news—and I'm—all—alone!"

"Trouble, Marchioness?" Kelly said, instantly concerned. "Hold everything, and I'll be there in twenty minutes, and you come on over here and have supper with me. Hey? Good girl! I was just feeling very low and blue and we'll fix each other up. I'm on my way!"

Kelly would not let her begin on the story of her troubles until she had eaten. Then he piled things on a tray, carried them away, came back to sit in the chair opposite her, stuffing his pipe and looking expectantly toward her.

"Now, who's been mean to you?" She gave him a flicker of a smile, but immediately her face was serious again.

"I feel so ashamed of having bothered you with it! But I—I felt that I was going mad, and you were the only friend I could think of. I just thought that if you were coming to town you might take me for a drive. I didn't mean all this!"

"I tell you my troubles," he reminded her, drawing on his pipe.

"You see, we girls at Saint Dorothea's never know much about our families. It isn't a regular school, you know. There aren't any vacations, and no relatives coming to see you."

"That's the school you came from?"

"Yes. I was there thirteen years, from the time I was seven. But I remembered my mother before that, and that I had a nurse named Emma."

"Fran told me something about it."

"At least I thought she was my nurse, and I used to imagine that my mother had been—well, rich, I suppose, because someone had left money to take care of me—and that Judge Marshbanks was my guardian."

"I see. Go on, Marchioness."

"Well, then when I came down and they'd found me a position with Mrs. Porter, Emma told me one day that she was my mother's sister. She wasn't a nurse at all, she was—she is my aunt!"

"A jolt, huh?"

"I don't think it was a jolt because she was a housekeeper and because I'd always thought of her as a nurse," Cherry said.

Close to tears again she looked blindly into the darting daggers and stars of the fire, and tried to steady her trembling lips.

"My dear girl," Kelly Coates said, taking his pipe from his mouth, "loads of people are going to love you, don't you worry!"

Cherry laughed brokenly, stealthily wiped her eyes, and went on, "but, you see, Mrs. Porter left me some money—"

"Well, bully for her!" Kelly commented. "Have a good cry over that!"

"They read the will today. The house is going to be a museum, and lots of the furniture will be left there, and Amy gets a lot, and we all get money."

Cherry paused as if undecided how to proceed, then rushed on, "But then—but then, after they'd read the will, Amy and the judge and I were having tea in the library, and we were talking about what Amy'd do and what I'd do and all that, and I happened to call Emma 'Aunt Emma.'"

"But he's your guardian. He'd know that she was your aunt."

"Oh, yes, that wasn't it. And when Amy seemed surprised I just said that I called her that sometimes, and Amy didn't pay any attention. But afterward Amy went out and then the judge asked me if Emma had told me about it, and I said yes, because I thought that was all he meant."

"What was all he meant?"

"That Aunt Emma was mother's sister."

"And what more did he mean?"

"I'm in tr-ouble and I've been crying, and I wondered if you'd come—come and take me for a drive!" stammered Cherry.

"Well, that—that—he went on talking about it, and that Aunt Emma was so fine even if she was rather cold, and then he said that his brother Fred was really a good person but impulsive and always getting into trouble."

"His brother Fred!" Kelly had knelt to straighten a slipped log in the fire. He shot her a look over his shoulder. "Fred was Amy's father?"

"Yes. Amy's name is Amy Marshbanks."

"That's right too. There was another brother?"

"No. Only Amy's father."

Kelly stopped his pipe halfway to his mouth and stared at her.

"Huh," he commented, in a brief sound like a grunt.

"And it—it killed me," Cherry said, not crying now, but pale and beginning to be agitated again. "It killed me! She's always had everything—she'll have more now—but it's not that! It's that they all loved her and wanted her and they've made so much of her and she's always had—I mean, I don't want anything she has—but they love her."

She steadied suddenly at the sight of his attentive but not too sympathetic face and for a moment looked at him in silence.

"I mean," she went on presently, gaining self-control with every word, "I mean that it—it sickened me to think that Amy and I are half sisters, and that he, my father, could treat my mother so terribly—my mother was so gentle, and she was ill so long! And she got nothing, and I spent all those years at Saint Dorothea's while Amy was traveling."

Her voice trailed off into an ashamed silence; the look she turned to Kelly became aggrieved and then apologetic. For a full minute neither spoke, and then Cherry said something timidly, "Don't you think that's terrible?"

"You rather knew, I suppose," Kelly began, "that things in your background had been somewhat irregular?"

"Oh, yes, I did. Indeed, I did! They don't tell you anything at Saint Dorothea's, you know, but of course the girls talk. And we read books."

"Well, then, looky, Cherry. Why is it so much worse to know that your father came of a good family, and that he really tried to do what he could for you? I suppose it was he who supported your mother, Emma's sister, and left money to take care of you?"

"Yes; the judge said so today."

"You're better off than I am," said Kelly. "You're twenty and I'm thirty-one. You've got all the world before you, and I'm so damned in love with a married woman that I don't know what to do with myself."

He glanced at his watch. "It's ten-ten. I'm going to run you home."

They went out into the darkness to the car.

"You'll never know what you've done for me tonight," Cherry said in the dark columns of the entrance.

"You did something for me too. I've been seeing blue devils all day. Listen," he went on in a brighter tone, "here's a bargain. If you get too down, you telephone me, and if I'm going crazy any time I'll telephone you, and we'll walk it out together. There are swell walks up over the hills over my way. How about it?"

"I would think it the nicest thing that ever happened to me," she said in a low tone.

"It's a go, then."

"There's only one thing. If we do that then I mightn't ever have any troubles," Cherry explained, her hand in his.

"You know what you ought to get for that!" His arm held her lightly, his lips brushed her forehead and he was gone.

Emma had gone with her kiffen to the country now, and Cherry was to leave for Palo Alto in a few days, to take possession of a room in the house of one Mrs. Pringle, and to begin summer-school work and to do a certain amount of coaching so as to be able to enter college as a regular student in the fall. On this particular day she was going down in the limousine with Fran who had a call or two to make in Atherton and Menlo Park, and who would pick Cherry up for the return trip after Cherry had introduced herself to her new landlady and inspected her quarters.

When she and Fran were in the car, Fran said presently, "Run the window down, will you, Cherry? It's warm."

"Wouldn't you rather have the side windows down?"

"No, I want to speak to Rousseau. Rousseau, go the old road, will you, please?" Fran asked, when she could speak to the chauffeur. "For I promised I'd stop at the antique shop."

The young Frenchman did not turn his head. But he nodded slightly.

"No, wait a minute, I think we'll do that after we leave Miss Rawlings in Palo Alto," Fran changed it suddenly.

"Now what's she about?" Cherry thought. "She's meeting someone!"

"I've not seen Kelly Coates for weeks," Fran presently said thoughtfully, as if reading Cherry's mind. "He telephones, but I haven't happened to be in. I like him, too."

"He likes you," Cherry said daintily.

"You see Kelly now and then, don't you?" Fran asked.

"Now and then."

"Late?"

"The day we closed up Mrs. Porter's house—that was day before yesterday—I saw him then," Cherry said, omitting any mention of the Sausalito visit. "We walked a little while in the Presidio."

"You like him a lot, don't you?" the soft, hoarse voice with its hidden notes of laughter and of tears asked simply.

Cherry felt the blood in her face. "I—guess so," she admitted, swallowing.

"Too bad," Fran said absently. "I'm sorry about Kelly! I was very unhappy when I married Jud," she presently went on, "and I told him that although I didn't love him as I might love some man some day—he's twenty-two years older than I am, you know."

"But that's all the more reason," Fran began again, after a pause, "why I should play fair with him."

She paused. "Cherry, I wonder if you will do something for me."

"I'd be so glad, Mrs. Marshbanks!"

"To begin with," Fran said with a direct smile from under her silky black bangs, and ultramodern hat, "don't call me Mrs. Marshbanks! It sounds as if I were an elderly aunt."

"Fran, then. What can I do?"

"I'm trying to think it out, exactly," Fran answered. "I think I mean that I'd like you to be a friend of Kelly's, Cherry, and help him see my position. If I were free, Fran went on thoughtfully, "I'd marry him. But I'm not free. You see, Cherry, two years ago—more than two years ago, when we'd been married—oh, perhaps eighteen months or so—I told Jud that I wanted to live my own life. I didn't want to be his wife any more—suddenly I went restless and unhappy, and it was that. I didn't want to be his wife!"

Fran continued: "Perhaps I'm a little less scrupulous than I might be about—I won't say flirting, I hate the word! But about friendships with men, liking men. I can't help it. I've made . . ." And to Cherry's astonishment the dark eyes so near her own were suddenly misting.

"I've made such a mess of my life so far," Fran said, "that I'm going to play the game now."

"So if you can," Fran concluded, as Cherry continued to watch her in silent fascination, "put that to Kelly. He likes you. He thinks you're interesting. And you see, nowadays I don't see him at all. I promised Jud I'd not see him unless it was unavoidable, and it is unavoidable."

"This is your place; it looks comfortable enough," Fran said as the car stopped. "Ask Rousseau to go to the gas station in Atherton, will you, and we'll find out there where the Rasmussen place is. And we'll be back for you at five."

Cherry, delightedly thrilled, descended at a green hedge not too well trimmed. Mrs. Pringle, large and untidy, took her up to her room, which was large.

The Cure

By

VIC YARDMAN

Associated Newspapers—WNU Features.

"OF ALL the idiots," said Uncle Andy, "that I've ever had the misfortune to encounter, this bird De Trego is the biggest." Uncle Andy threw his hands into the air in a gesture of utter disgust, and continued to stalk from one end of the porch to the other.

Brenda Deering, Uncle Andy's niece, sat in the big arm chair and watched Uncle Andy with a hint of amusement in her wide, brown eyes. She had seen Uncle Andy like this before. And she knew her role was to wait patiently for the fit of anger to subside; then to ruffle his sparse gray hair, kiss his shiny forehead and tweak his chin. This treatment usually produced satisfactory results.

Yet as Brenda watched her uncle, she had a queer feeling that he was not going to succumb to her hair-ruffling and chin-tweaking. Somehow today he seemed a little more violent than usual, a little more intent upon his purpose.

Suddenly Uncle Andy came to a dead halt before the big armchair. "Look here, Brenda. You're not going to marry this De Trego. Not if I can prevent it. And prevent it I have every intention of doing. He's nothing but a mollycoddle, and will never be anything else. He isn't worthy of a Deering, and that," he added emphatically, "is that."

Still Brenda remained silent. She knew that Uncle Andy had more to say, and she thought it best to hear him out.

"Look here, Brenda. You're not going to marry this De Trego. Not if I can prevent it."

Uncle Andy's voice suddenly softened. "Listen, Brenda, I want you to go away for a while. I want you to visit my ranch down in Texas. You'll like it there. There are horses to ride and mountains to climb and rivers to fish in. The change will do you good. And perhaps," he went on hopefully, "you'll find time to analyze this Henry De Trego bloke and discover I'm correct in my estimation of him."

Brenda looked steadily into Uncle Andy's eyes and waited. "Do that much for me, Brenda. Go down there for a month. After that, after you've had time to think it all over seriously—if you still want to marry De Trego—I'll give my consent."

Brenda leaned forward. "That's a promise?"

Uncle Andy bowed his head. And Brenda said at once: "Then I'll go, Uncle Andy. I'll start tomorrow."

Brenda swung from the limited at Devil's Gap, and the hot blasts of the desert smote her in the face. Involuntarily she recoiled, as if repulsed by the sight of the bleak, desolate-looking crackerbox station, the barren wastes of desert behind it, the hot furnace-like air.

A man came around a corner of the station, espied her standing there, and approached, sombrero in hand.

"I'm Jack Fremont," he said. "Foreman at the Double R. I reckon you're Miss Brenda."

Brenda looked up into the sun-bronzed face and the friendly, gray eyes of this Adonis-like Westerner who confronted her. "You're—you're Jack Fremont?" Then suddenly she laughed as a picture of the Jack Fremont Uncle Andy had painted for her conjured itself in her mind. Dear old Uncle Andy.

The tall cowboy seemed embarrassed and not a little puzzled at her demeanor, and Brenda's face sobered. "I'm sorry, Mr. Fremont. You see, Uncle Andy hadn't warned me."

Fremont still seemed puzzled, but he led the way silently to a smart-looking roadster parked on the opposite side of the station. If Brenda was surprised at sight of the car, she made no comment. They left the station behind. Hot blasts from the desert struck her in the face. She sank into the deep cushions of the roadster, and felt as though she was being burned to a crisp.

At length they left the desert behind and entered the hills, long, rolling hills, grassy hills dotted with cattle, with a background of purple mountains on the dim horizon. Later, hours later it seemed to Brenda, they reached the ranch. Mrs. Borden, a motherly sort of person, who had served as the Double R housekeeper for years, made Brenda feel instantly at home.

Brenda was delighted with the spot. It was all that Uncle Andy had pictured. The air was cool and invigorating; the landscape was unequalled for beauty and grandeur.

Brenda, already an adept horsewoman, took long rides into the upland country. And with her rode Jack Fremont. He was, Brenda discovered, an excellent guide, a splendid companion. Far from being uncouth, as an eastern girl might have pictured a Texas cowboy, he talked freely of things that only a person having a fine background could discuss.

As the weeks slipped by, Brenda came more and more to look forward to her rides with Fremont. He was different than most men she'd known. He was gentle and kind and fine. Occasionally she thought of Henry De Trego, and at these times she wondered whether Uncle Andy hadn't been right in judging him. Brenda wondered, too, how it was she had ever loved, or thought she loved, that man.

The month of Brenda's exile had almost come to an end when Fremont spoke for the first time of those things that Brenda knew were inevitable. And despite herself her heart quickened its beat when the cowboy leaned forward and looked into her eyes.

"Brenda," he said simply, "I love you. And I believe you love me. I—we—that is—," he floundered. Brenda looked at him questioningly. There was a sudden coldness in her eyes.

And Jack said: "I must tell you something first. I—it wouldn't be fair to ask you to marry me until I do."

"Yes?" said Brenda coolly.

But Jack failed to notice her lack of response. He rushed on. "I'm not a cowboy, Brenda. Two months ago I was employed in your uncle's office in Boston. He sent me down here to get browned up. Said he wanted his niece to come down later, and he wanted someone to look after her. He—he wanted me to act as a sort of—gigolo."

Jack hesitated. "He told me about De Trego, and he offered me a sum of money I couldn't refuse if I'd make you forget the man. I—I—Brenda, I know you can't love me now. But believe me when I say—I wouldn't take a million times that amount of money if I could have you."

The cold look had left Brenda's eyes. And in its stead was a warm, soft glow. She leaned forward almost abruptly and kissed Jack on the lips.

"I'm glad you told me, Jack. I never could have married you if you hadn't."

Jack looked at her aghast.

"Then you knew?"

Brenda nodded. "I happened to see the letter you wrote to Uncle, telling him that you were browned up enough to look like a Westerner, and were ready for your victim." Her eyes twinkled. "You enclosed your picture in that letter—to prove how brown you were. I saw the picture, too. That's why I didn't offer any objection when Uncle Andy suggested I come down here for a vacation."

Dieppe Channel Helpful,

Hazardous to All Invaders

The French coast, near Dieppe—where the first American forces landed—presents both favorable and unfavorable physical conditions to the United Nations invaders.

Out of the English channel rise the sheer, white cliffs of Normandy, here and there cut by river valleys. Before the war, stretches of beaches at their bases were thronged with vacationists at this time of the year. A rocky shelf, dry at low tide, extends all along the Dieppe coast. This shelf is generally not more than 200 yards wide.

To invasion forces, one disadvantage is that the beach shores on which landings may be made from small boats are often in the shadow of commanding bluffs, from which the enemy could launch counterattacks.

The whole northern coast of France is considered dangerous for normal shipping because of its many offshore rocks and shallows, its unequal depths, and its tricky currents. On the other hand, hazards which are known may turn out to be advantages in military operations where special craft may be evolved to meet the necessities. The prevalent fogs of the area, too, though feared by peacetime mariners, are today valuable for protective cover. Toward the eastern end of the English channel, where Dieppe is situated, the fogs are so common, especially in summer, that the land in some sections is almost never clear of mist.

Pictures in Human Eye

Pictures formed on the retina of the human eye often are incredibly tiny; for small objects the retinal images may be less than one-thousandth of an inch in diameter, according to the Better Vision institute. The size of an image on the retina is determined by the angle of the light rays reflected to the eye by an object. The farther away an object, the smaller is the angle of its reflected light rays, and the smaller is the image on the retina. This explains why persons look no bigger than ants when viewed from a height. The smallest angle in which an object can be recognized by the human eye is about one minute.

BREMEN HOME BUREAU

The regular October meeting of the Bremen Home Bureau will be held at the home of Mrs. Mae Panozzo on 183rd St. east of Sayre Ave. on Tuesday, October 27 at 1:30 pm.

Mrs. Marie Cornelius, Home Adviser will present the major topic:
"Understanding Youth in the World of Today." There is much interest in youth at the present time because this is the age most drastically affected by war time conditions. Families are coming to realize that there must be a more complete understanding of the problems, interests, present and possible future of the young person if he is to be wisely guided in these critical times.

The Minor Topic Recreation in the Home will be concluded by Mrs. H.
S. Bartholomew.

Home Bureau is sponsoring Reading Courses this year which are made available to all members thru the auspices of the Extension Service and Illinois State Library. There are 14 courses being offered some of which are:

Art, related to home and personal living, Child Development and Guidance, Family Economics, including Consumer Problems, Food and Nutrition, Homemaking, Mental Health,
Music for the Home.

We extend a hearty invitation to any mother or one interested in our program to be our guest and attend this meeting.

Mrs. Fred Willman Sr. spent the weekend in Columbus, Ohio visiting her son Sgt. Frederick Willman Jr. who is stationed at Lockbourne Air Field.

Re-roofing Over
Your Present Roof Is Almost as Simple as This

MANY people think that we must remove the old shingles before we can apply a new roof. But that is wrong. With modern Logan-Long Shingles, we re-roof right over the old one—and you get a better, quicker, neater job. Our men are skilled and trained in this modern method, which we use on practically all the roofs we are applying today. Our method lets you keep the old roof as additional insulation.
Helps to keep your home
warmer in winter and cooler in summer. Let us inspect your roof free—without obligation to you. Know the actual condition your roof is in now. Telephone us today.

Citizens Service Committee:

Hello friends of Tinley Park. Received your package of cookies some time ago and want to thank you very much for it.

We are having some very changeable weather lately, hot one day, cold the next, and a lot of rain. The nights are very cold. But when I heard you had snow already in Illinois, it doesn't surprise me at all that it's so cool down south here.

I see by the Times that the boys are stationed all over the U.S. I want to say hello to all of them, and wish them a lot of luck.

I am moving again, and going back to New Bern where I started from so will you please advise the editor of the Times of the change in address. I still receive the Tinley Park Times and enjoy reading it very much.

I remain, Your Friend.

October 4, 1942

Citizens Service Committee,

Tinley Park, Ill.

Dear Friends:

I know that I owe an apology to each and everyone, for not writing sooner, but wish to take the pleasure at this time to thank you for the fine box of cookies you sent me quite some time ago, and the cigarettes of a more recent date, and also the Tin-ley Park Times, which I'm supposed to receive regularly, but for some reason do not. Altho I do not smoke, I can assure you the cigarettes were not in my possession very long, with a bunch of pals surrounding me all day.

I have just finished my basic training in the Engineer Corp down here in Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo. As you all know, your basic training is the hardest, and especially in the Engineer Corp, as the engineer is one of the most rugged and toughest in the service. They're first and last in everything. We've had long hikes with heavy packs strapped to our backs, several different types of bridge building including pontoon and cable bridges, wire entanglements, night problems, and rifle range, in which I might add, I made marksmanship score. Taking all these activities in consideration and being accomplished in just a few short weeks, one can readily see that spare time is very rare, and it is for this reason that I have been unable to write at an earlier date.

Practically all the men I came with in my company were shipped out during last ten days, to all parts of the US with the exception of a few which were sent to specialists schools. I was fortunate to be picked to go to clerk school, and was told that I would be transferred from the Engineers corp into the Finance Department, within a few weeks, upon graduation from Clerk school. I do not know, however, whether I'll get stationed here or get transferred, but if I do, I'll assure you that I'll notify you of this change of address.
So thinking you all once more,

for the wonderful gifts, I remain,
Sincerely,
Pvt. Arthur Kampe

A communication has been received from the Director of Labor of the State of Illinois asking the American Legion's cooperation in making a survey of our community to assist the Department in an investigation into charges of discrimination against the older age group worker. Reports are being received by the State Labor board which indicate that some firms are refusing to hire older workers because of increased insurance rates charged employers for workman's compensation on such older employees. If any such cases of discrimination are found, the Department needs the name of the Company involved and all pertinent facts in the case in order to make proper representations to the insurance companies or if necessary, to secure legislative enactment to set up an insurance fund that will protect the older worker. It is the aim of the Department of Labor to make it possible for every physically qualified person to find gainful employment regardless of their age. Any complaint or information on the above situation may be communicated to the Adjutant of Orland Park Post, Mr. S. S. Knox, and he will forward the facts in the case to the proper destination.

The Goodwill Industries truck will be in our neighborhood very shortly and will pick up any articles you may wish to donate to this worthy institution—used wearing apparel, shoes, furniture, books, papers, magazines etc. If you have anything in this line, drop a postal card or phone Mrs. S. S. Knox, Orland 100-W and the truck will pick up your material. Remember, the Orland Park Methodist church receives conference credit for the cash valuation of your donation.

The Executive Board of the Legion Auxiliary will meet Friday evening Oct. 23 at 8 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Mary Marrs, Worth, Ill.

Living up to all advance notices, the installation of officers of Orland Park Post No. 526 of the American Legion, proved to be a most enjoyable affair.

Close to 50 members and guests from neighboring posts were present to enjoy Orland Post's hospitality and all voted the affair a tremendous success. Commander Walter Stansel, Commander of the 8th Legion District acted as installing officer and Reginald Germany, 8th District Adjutant assisted as Sergeant of Arms. There were visiting comrades present from Chicago, Blue Island, Harvey, Markham, Tinley Park, Midlothian, Lemont and Chicago Heights. Following the close of their meeting, the members of Selective Service Board No. 10 came over in a body.

Baked tenderized ham formed the main part of the refreshments and these were backed up with regular old Army style baked beans, both in quantities sufficient to furnish "seconds" and even "thirds" to all who wished them.

The newly installed officers were as follows: Commander, Harry Rauch; Sr. Vice Commander, Wm. Myrick; Jr. Vice Commander, George Sayers; Adjutant, Sherman S. Knox; Finance Officer, Ray Doctor; Chaplain, Thomas Cooper; Historian, Lawrence Pettit; Service Officer, Van Buren Knox; Sergeant at Arms, John Busch.

George Cox, the retiring commander, has had a most successful year, both in point of membership and in service accomplishment and leaves the Post in a healthy, stable condition for his successor.

PREAMBLE COOK COUNTY PERSONAL PROPERTY ASSESSMENT FOR 1942

OFFICIAL NOTICE
This publication is the official notice to property owners of the 1942 personal property assessments made in the town and district indicated.

RETURNS AND ESTIMATES
THE LAW PROVIDES THAT, WHERE A PROPERTY OWNER FAILS TO RETURN A SWORN SCHEDULE LISTING HIS PROPERTY, THE ASSESSOR OF COOK COUNTY MUST ESTIMATE ITS VALUE ACCORDING TO HIS BEST JUDGMENT AND INFORMATION, AND ADD THERETO A PENALTY OF 50 PER CENT. ASSESSMENTS BASED ON ESTIMATES AND RETURNS HAVE EQUAL STANDING IN LAW.

ASSESSED VALUES LISTED
The amounts listed herein are the assessed values of personal property as of April 1, 1942. The assessed value has been computed by applying the 37 per cent equalization factor to the full fair cash value of the personal property as determined by the assessor of Cook County.

The amount listed as the assessed value is not the tax. The tax will be determined by multiplying the assessed value by the tax rate in the town and district in which the property is assessed. The Assessor does not make the tax rate.

BASIS OF COMPLAINT ON ASSESSMENT
Where a property owner has a specific claim of over or under valuation, complaint may be filed with the Board of Appeals in the County Building immediately after this notice.

INFORMATION ON ASSESSMENTS
Each property owner who has any question in regard to the same, should inquire at the office of the Assessor of Cook County, Room 312, County Building. Information will be furnished without cost.

JOHN S. CLARK,
Assessor of Cook County.

OFFICE OF COUNTY TREASURER OF COOK COUNTY AND EX-OFFICIO COUNTY COLLECTOR OF COOK COUNTY, ILLINOIS

Advertisement and Notice of Collector of Cook County of Application for Sale of Delinquent Lands and Lots for General Taxes for the year 1941 and Notice of Sale Thereof and application for Judgment, fixing the correct amount of any tax paid under protest and for order for sale on such payments as provided by law.

Orland Township

October 21, 1942

NOTICE is hereby given that said Collector of Cook County will apply to the County Court of Cook County on the Second day of November, A.D. 1942, for judgment against lands and lots hereinafter described as being delinquent upon which taxes remain due and unpaid, or personal property taxes charged thereon as noted in this advertisement, remain due and unpaid, for said taxes, interest and costs, and for an order to sell said lands and lots for the satisfaction thereof according to law (excepting from said judgment and order of sale the cases which are included in this advertisement for sale only under former unexecuted judgments and orders of sale as may be noted in this advertisement.)

Notice is also given that an application will be made for judgment fixing the correct amount of any tax paid under protest.

Notice is further herein and hereby given that on the Second Monday next succeeding the Second Day of November, A. D. 1942, to-wit, the Sixteenth Day of November, A. D. 1942, at the hour of 8 o'clock A. M. all said lands and lots hereinafter described for sale of which an order shall be made, or have heretofore been made and not executed as noted, will be exposed to public sale at the County Building of Cook County, where the County Court is held in said County for the amount of taxes, interest and costs due thereon respectively.

The following is the list of delinquent lands and lots in Orland Township upon which the taxes remain due and unpaid the name of the owners, where known, the total amount due thereon (excluding delinquent special assessments separately advertised) and the year or years for which the same is due.

(The total amount due in this application on each tract or parcel of land or lot is the sum of the amounts appearing due in this advertisement.)

EXPLANATORY NOTE—In this list in all places where no other notation is made the figures in the column "$" (meaning dollars) and the "cts" (meaning cents) represent the taxes due and unpaid for the year A. D. 1941. Where the letter "F" is placed to the left of the figures in this column it is intended for an abbreviation of the word "Forfeiture", and denotes that the amounts set down to the right of the same are the amounts due and unpaid on said land and lots for which said lands and lots have been previously forfeited to the State. When back taxes are extended, they are indicated by "B. T."

Payments of taxes, made after printers copies are sent to the publisher for listing and appear as delinquent in this advertisement will be satisfied in judgment records before sale.

Where no description of property (either land, lot block or portion thereof) appears in said list to the left of and opposite the figures in said column headed "$" (meaning dollars) and "cts" (meaning cents) said figures relate to the land, lot block or portion thereof last above described appearing to the left of and opposite "$" and "cts" column. "Name" in the words "name" where used in the list means name of the owner of said delinquent lands or lots and "desc" in said words means description of said lands or lots.

BLACKOUT

Just turn out lights : : : don't pull main switch

Pulling main switches needlessly reduces the efficient operation of a home. There are many electric appliances that serve a vital household function without casting a light. Ranges, oil burners, water heaters, refrigerators, clocks, radios — any break in their operation lessens the efficiency of the home.

Make your home livable during blackouts

A blackout, especially a long one, may have a harmful, depressing effect on your family—unless some part of your home is specially prepared for living under blackout conditions.

You may want to select one room as a "refuge room," and black out its windows so that the family can gather in cheerful surroundings. Also, you may want to black out the bathroom window. It's a good idea to make the same preparations for your kitchen, too, in case of a prolonged blackout.

Write out your "blackout schedule"

Don't leave the blacking out of your home to chance. Make a list of all the things that have to be done. Appoint one member of the family to be responsible, with a substitute to serve in his absence.

If you plan to be away from home during the evening, and wish to leave a light burning, be sure to make some arrangement with a neighbor. Remember, even "practice" blackouts may come without warning!

ST. PETER'S EVAN. CHURCH FRANKFORT ERECTED 1915 NEW PARSONAGE BUILT IN 1926
INSET—REV. GUSTAV LAMBRECHT

In a well ordered and active congregation the church and parsonage will always reflect the interest and loyalty of its members. As the individual is usually judged by his personal appearance so a well kept church property reflects the interest of the congregation.

While not as fully equipped for social activities as some churches St. Peter's has made every effort to make its church both beautiful and practical for carrying on its work and its members have never hesitated to bring needed sacrifices to keep the property in good repair and add new additions and equipment needed for expanding its work and making it more efficient.

WE LOOKED AHEAD AND FORESAW TODAY'S NEEDS

We could not, of course, foresee war. But we DID have the vision to anticipate the growth of American industry and recognize the need for still faster, more efficient transportation. So we built accordingly, with one objective in mind—to keep ROCK ISLAND LINES in the forefront of American railroads. During the past six years we have adhered to a program of PLANNED PROGRESS, constantly building for the future. As a result, when war came, we were prepared. So well prepared, in fact, that today we are capable of carrying even MORE vital war freight than the millions of ton-miles per day we have been so far called upon to haul! Given sufficient materials to continue, we shall make even greater progress in the service of America. Our program of PLANNED PROGRESS has achieved many extensive and enduring improvements.

GRADE REDUCTIONS over all of EQUIPMENT AND FACILITIES are Rock Island Lines have proved one of improved. Speedier, more powerful locomotives—cars of latest design—For reduced grades mean increased many innovations accelerate freight speeds for the munitions of war and operations and provide the expedited vital passenger travel.

HEAVIER RAILS, heavier ballast and heavier cross-ties permit heavier early ticket purchases...advance res-loadings! These and many other improvements have made Rock Island Lines a part of America's great railroad system.

FOR WARTIME TRAVEL we urge early ticket purchases...advance reservations...traveling on mid-week days when possible...cancelling reservations promptly if plans change...traveling with minimum luggage.

IT IS not necessary to make our economies so dull and dreary that they depress every one. Let's make them so gay and attractive that they give us a lift and a bit of a challenge too. This old rocker is an example.

A saw and a wood chisel were used for removing projections and rockers. An old quilt was found for padding and the feathers from an old bolster were packed into a thick seat cushion to raise the seat which has been lowered by removing the rockers. This required a yard and a quarter of ticking. Four and one-half yards of inexpensive chintz in a bold, modern pattern did the rest.

NOTE: This remodeled chair is from BOOK 5 of the series of booklets that are offered with these articles. In this book an old-fashioned couch is modernized, and tables from spoils, new uses are found for a camp stool; other types of chairs are made over; and a love seat is made from an old car seat. Also patchwork designs and directions for designing and making hooked rugs. To get a copy of BOOK 5, send your order to:

Let's Have a Party . . . While Witches Play
(See Recipes Below.)

Halloween Pranks

October's the month which flaunts her gay, burnished colors as a prelude to winter. It's the month of apples and cider, of pumpkins and squash against dry sheaves of corn stalk, of fragrant gingerbread or doughnuts fried crisply tender in hot sizzling deep fat.

October's the month of Halloween—when witches, spooks and black cats make merry. Big ones or wee ones will love a party that mingles what's best in October with the spookiest of what's Halloween.

Pretty up with a party and give your spirits a lift with traditional food that's easy on purse strings, a hit with the party-goers. Decorations can be nature's own, a pumpkin or two whole or cut into a jolly face lit with candle glow, squash and apples banked with deep yellow, brown or red leaves, bowls of apples, grapes, popcorn and spicy drinks.

Let the children paste black cats, owls and witches onto mugs and invitations inviting guests to come as their favorite spook be it an owl, witch astride a broomstick, or a slinking cat.

Have a good hot dish if you are having the Halloween party indoors—something fixed in advance that you can put in the oven to get warm, slip out in a hurry to get to the table like tuna fish souffle, cheese fondue, macaroni and cheese with broiled bacon slices, or a hamburger roast.

Outdoor plans may include a wienie roast, with the children participating at the outdoor fireplace or grill. If you prefer hamburgers, fix the patties indoors with their seasonings, wrap in wax ready for broiling. Wienies require thorough washing.

Construct a simple grill outdoors for roasting wienies if you aren't lucky enough to have a brick grill. This will take a lot of the rough-house outdoors and save wear and tear on your house. Games will most likely be outdoors if it isn't too cold as the revelers will want to roam with spirits and ghosts.

Few foods equal the deliciousness of wienies roasted over the flames on forks or sticks fashioned from branches, depending on your degree of going in for naturalness.

Plenty of long buns, already split indoors before the party and heaped high in a basket, are indicated. They're best when toasted—with lots of butter, mustard, relish, cat-sup or homemade chili sauce as accompaniments for wienies roasted to doneness with a taste of smoke and ashes.

If you go in for roasting marshmallows along with wienies, try them rolled in coconut just for a taste of something different. They're really good!

You can't have enough hot foods as the weather is bound to be on the crisp and chilly side. There will

LYNN SAYS:

The Score Card: Corner your share of these food bargains during the next few weeks: Cabbage, apples, plums, pears, green peppers, lima beans and cauliflower. The well-dressed table will also wear eggs, chicken and cheddar cheese not only for variety but also economy.

Style your table with carrots, potatoes, turnip greens, beets and beet tops, mustard, spinach. Good for you, and perfect with most other foods in the meal.

Standardized bottles have been ordered for wines, jellies and preserves. Home-canning jars are not affected in this order of the War Production board.

Variety notes: if you don't have porterhouse as often, you can have excellent dishes from lesser known cuts of meat such as liver, kidneys, heart, sweetbreads and tongue.

be cheers from the boisterous and ahs from the more conservative if you serve this golden, pineapple drink with a suspicion of spice. The vitamins B1 and C in the pineapple won't permit any let-down in morale and pep:

*Mulled Pineapple Juice. (Serves 4-6)

1 inch stick of cinnamon
3 whole cloves
1/4 teaspoon cloves
1/4 teaspoon grated nutmeg
1 quart canned, unsweetened Hawaiian pineapple juice
Pinch of salt
Tie the spices in a small piece of cheesecloth, add them to the pineapple juice, and bring to the boiling point, but do not boil. Add salt. Serve immediately.

Gingerbread wears a party air if you decorate the tops with a frosting outline of a Halloween symbol after it is cut into slices. Here's a recipe for gingerbread that's light as down and exquisitely fragrant with spices in correct proportions:

*Gingerbread.
1/2 cup shortening
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup light molasses
1/2 cup boiling water
1 beaten egg
1 1/2 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon soda
3/4 teaspoon ginger
3/4 teaspoon cinnamon

Pour water over shortening and add sugar, molasses and egg. Beat well. Add sifted dry ingredients, beat until smooth. Bake in a waxed-paper-lined square pan in a moderate (350-degree) oven. Cool in pan.

If it's doughnuts you've a liking for, I'd suggest the kind made with sour cream or milk. They have a lightness of a feather that is the criterion for a "sinker."

*Sour Milk Doughnuts. (Makes 2 dozen)

3 cups flour
3/4 cup sugar
1 tablespoon melted shortening
1/2 teaspoon soda
2 eggs
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 cup sour milk

Sift flour, sugar, nutmeg and salt. Dissolve soda in sour milk. Beat eggs well and add milk to eggs. Add to dry ingredients, then mix in melted shortening. Roll out and cut with a doughnut cutter. Fry in deep hot fat (360-370 degrees F.) until golden brown. Drain on brown paper.

Fun's in store for the youngsters if you let them polish off the party with these old-fashioned, sugar-saving popcorn balls:

*Taffy Popcorn.
4 cups popped corn
2 cups shelled peanuts
3/4 cup molasses
1/2 cup sugar
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon vinegar
1/4 cup water
1/2 teaspoon soda

Mix molasses, sugar, butter, water and vinegar. Cook slowly and without stirring until the crack stage is reached. Add soda and stir well. Add remaining ingredients and mix well before pouring into shallow, well-greased pans. When cold, cut into bars or squares.

One of the really great songs of this war is "This Is Worth Fighting For." It is being heard on the radio, but not half enough.

Elmer Twitchell is heart and soul in the move to get along on less meat. "My only regret," he announced today, "is that I have only one chin to give for my country."

We are behind Westbrook Pegler's drive to take the bumpers off all cars and give them to the government to be converted into war weapons. But what are we going to do the next time some stalled fellow says, "Buddy, can you give my car a push for a half-mile or so?"

ALL-AMERICAN

A patriot's a fellow who Without a sign of yelping
Ignores for the red, white and blue
A third, or second, helping.

"All gambling in New York must be wiped out."—Mayor LaGuardia.

Wanna bet?

Secretary Stimson must be a real fighting secretary of war. He is the only one ever to knock out a heavyweight champion and the contender with one punch.

Wendell Willkie is for a second front as soon as possible, even if some army and navy men have to be prodded. He knows what one would have meant to him in the last election.

"Canned ham and eggs may be all right," says R. Roelofs, Jr., "but wait till the boys try to decide which is sunny side up."

"Union Square Demands Second Front."—Headline. One that it can participate in only by the radio.

More than 500 pamphlets, bulletins, releases, etc., by government bureaus have been cut out or suspended by Elmer Davis. This means that you just can't get copies of "How to Be a Bee," "The Inner Life of the Common Toadpick" and "The Art of Dogsdog Weaving."

Private Purkey was found 50 miles behind his outfit the other day. But he denied he was establishing a Second Rear.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt, in the navy as a boatswain, came into another five million dollars the other day. It is a break to be in the navy when you get five million. In the army, unless you had your own dice, you would lose it in no time.

New York city is going to tear down numerous big buildings for scrap metal. Among them is a 22-story skyscraper at West End avenue and 72nd street, built 18 years ago and never occupied by anything but pigeons. Thousands of visitors, passing on the Fifth avenue buses, just before the turn onto Riverside drive, have noticed this gaunt structure and asked about it. Once we heard a tired busman reply, "That's Grant's tomb, lady." "I thought Grant's tomb was further up?" she said. "That's just his summer tomb," he replied. "This is his winter one."

Ima Dodo has written a movie. It is about a girl and a boy on a desert island. The boy disappears. The girl is alone for months, reduced to starvation. Finally a ship loaded with tenderloin steaks is wrecked on the island, just in time to save her life. Ima says the big thing about it is her title: "Meat Buoys Girl."

THOSE OIL ZONES

"A" stands for fuel oil more copiously
Than you'll ever get it in homes in Zone "B."

"B" is for heat which will keep you quite hot Compared to the homes in the zones where you're not.

Indian Summer: That time of year when you want to scalp the fellow who says: "This is the best time of the whole year."

Ima Dodo is going all out in the scrap drive. She has asked her sweetheart to give the iron from his blood. And she personally is going to abandon her determination of steel.

"For Sale—Two pianos, $4.98 each; cash and carry; no fooling. E. J. Anderson."—Pleasantville Journal.

That's what you think!

With boots rationed and with the fuel oil regulations in force, the Republican candidates in the coming elections would get the break of their lives if election week weather turned out to be floods, followed by freezing.

One of the most dangerous of pedestrian practices is pictured in this poster which is being distributed to more than 38,000 classrooms in the Illinois and Indiana territory of the Chicago Motor Club during October. This "tank trap" type of accident, which is caused by crossing streets in the parked car area in the middle of the block, accounts for almost one-third of all traffic injuries and fatalities involving children.
